Technical textiles & Fashion

For several decades now, the textile industry has seen the opening of new markets - known as technical textiles...

Some had completely abandoned the fashion and decoration sector; others had strengthened their skills in markets more associated with creativity. Today, the two worlds of technical textiles and fashion/decoration textiles have found each other again. The most impacted sector is sportswear, which combines attractiveness with performance...

And so, could everything, ranging from dedicated textiles to technical applications, be a new source of inspiration for fashion and decoration?

An experiment has been launched: more than 15 parades have been designed using technical textiles as well for fashion. For the AVANTEX PARIS show, at the beginning of February 2016, the notion of ONE textile sector for infinite markets is more than ever a reality!

They are members

TENTHOREY

Today, TENTHOREY remains one of the leaders in the profession and is among the initiators of textile renewal. The company produces a whole collection of cotton bags, carriers and handbags, customisable by adding the logo of your brand or institution.

As regards cotton, TENTHOREY is looking for a raw material produced with respect for human beings and their environment. For this reason, TENTHOREY has entered into a partnership with the MAX HAVELAAR association for its action in favour of small producers in the countries of the South.

The company can thus offer certified textile products, created from 100% cotton with the fair trade label. Green energy is used in the spinning and weaving: hydroelectricity!
